

CV of Invited Faculty

	Kathryn TAN
Position	Sir David Todd Professor in Medicine
Department, Affiliation	Department of Medicine, University of Hong Kong
Major Field	Diabetes and Lipidology
Professional Activities: (Career or membership)	Sir David Todd Professor in Medicine, Chief of Endocrinology and Metabolism, Department of Medicine, Queen Mary Hospital, Hong Kong
Short Bio (in 150 words):	Kathryn Tan is Sir David Todd Professor in Medicine, Chief of Division of Endocrinology and Metabolism at the University of Hong Kong, and Honorary Consultant of the Department of Medicine at Queen Mary Hospital. Her main research interests include lipid disorders and lipoprotein metabolism and vascular complications of diabetes. Work in her laboratory is directed at investigating the role of dyslipidaemia and post-translational modification derived products in the pathogenesis of vascular disease and diabetic complications. She is currently serving on the Executive Board of the Asian Association for the Study of Diabetes. She is Senior Editor of the journal Endocrine Connections and Associate Editor of the Journal of Diabetes Investigation.

*The information will be shown on the website and conference materials only.